BRINGING Air Management Technology to Baseball

For more than 30 years, Douglas Pads & Sports has produced protective products for elite athletes. With the Douglas custom football shoulder pad products leading the way, using the Douglas Air Management System, the Douglas products have become known as the premier protective product in the industry.

For many years, Douglas has successfully offered baseball/softball protection for the hand and elbow, along with umpire chest protectors and leg guards. All of these products also utilize the Douglas Air Management System.

Now for the first time for the 2018 season, the Douglas Air Management System will be used in catchers' chest protectors, covering the cardiac silhouette. The Douglas Air Management System will disperse the energy created when the ball strikes this area, reducing the possibility of serious injury. While no equipment can guarantee the complete elimination of injury, the Douglas Air Management System reduces the severity of these impacts, allowing athletes at all levels with the ability to perform at their highest level.

Whether you are a youth, high school, collegiate or professional player, you are invited to experience this premier product now offered by Douglas Pads & Sports.
